WHAT MAKES A GRILL A WEBER® GRILL?

We believe that the most critical element to building an exceptional grill is dedication — dedication to designing and crafting a grill that won't let you down when you get it home from the store. From the time you open the box to the time you take your meal off the grill, we want owning a Weber® grill to be a good experience. We won't settle for anything less. And you shouldn't either.

Call us picky if you must. It's true. Each Weber® grill is made from only the highest-grade materials that are chosen to weather the elements and stand the test of time. And before a single grill leaves our factory door, it is thoroughly tested and inspected to make sure it meets our rigorous standards and is worthy of the Weber brand name.

In this brochure, you'll find the best-selling models in our expansive line of products. From our ever popular Smokey Joe® portable charcoal grills to our sleek, stainless steel Summit® gas grills, you'll find one that's right for you.

If you have any questions about the products in this brochure, we invite you to call 1-800-446-1071 and talk with a Weber Certified BBQ Expert™. They are here to answer questions you might have such as how to decide between gas or charcoal, how to compare grills, or even how to sear a steak perfectly — just about anything to do with grills and grilling. Feel free to call anytime. We answer calls 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

HOW TO FIND THE RIGHT GRILL

Shopping for a grill can't be that hard, right? It's true, a grill is not a complex machine, but if you don't know what to look for, you might end up owning disappointment instead of a grill that will do you proud. Here are five steps that will make shopping for a grill easier.

Step: 1 » GIVE IT THE WIGGLE TEST

Grab the grill by the sides and give it a good shake. A well-built grill should feel solid and sturdy.

» Tip: Look for a gas grill cart constructed of either high-grade U.S. steel with a baked-on enamel finish that won't chip or heavy-gauge 304 grade stainless steel that will resist corrosion. Inspect the cart frame for welds in critical areas. Grills assembled mostly with fasteners will be less durable over time.

Step: 2 » CHECK UNDER THE HOOD

Check out the cooking grates. Look for cooking grates that will conduct heat well and are made of durable materials. Porcelain-enameled steel, porcelain-enamel coated cast-iron, and stainless steel grates are the best. If buying a gas grill, look for a grill that has heavy-gauge stainless steel burners. Burners that run the length of the cookbox will deliver more even heat. Also make sure the metal bars covering the burners don't have cutouts or holes which reduces their ability to protect the burners from clogging.

» Tip: A grill with more than one burner lets you cook by the Indirect method. Look for burners with infinite temperature settings to give you the greatest control of the heat.

Step: 3 » CHECK OUT HOW EASY IT IS TO CLEAN

A charcoal grill should have a system to easily remove ashes from inside the grill. Better ones have a large capacity ash catcher. A gas grill should have a deep catch pan for grease and drippings that is easy to reach from the front of the grill.

» Tip: Remove the drip tray or catch pan. If it sticks it means it is poorly designed or may be warped.

Step: 4 » LOOK FOR SAFETY FEATURES

Look for handles that are made of materials that won't conduct heat and that give you ample room for hands and fingers. Lift up the hood and make sure there is plenty of clearance for your arm. On gas grills, check and make sure electrical wires and gas line plumbing is set a safe distance from the underside of the grill and isn't near the drip pan where it could be a safety hazard.

» Tip: Check to make sure the grill is equally as steady when the grill hood is up.

Step: 5 » EXAMINE THE WARRANTY

Look for a generous and uncomplicated warranty. Your warranty should be clear and not have a lot of ifs-ands-or-buts. Think about who made your grill. Do you know the name on the hood? Will they be around to support you down the road?

» Tip: To get a good sense of what type of support you might get from a brand, call the customer service number as a test.
